Two Electrocuted At Ford River In Drilling Accident

Two men were killed today near Ford River town hall when a steel guy line on a well drilling machine came into contact with a 6600-volt electric power line.

They are:
Lloyd C. Baker, 26, of 774 Orchard Lake avenue, Pontiac, Mich.

Leslie F. Hofacre, 31, Rt. 2, Dalton, O.

Both men were employed by the Dunbar Drilling & Supply company of 315 Main street, Delta, O., which was awarded a contract by Ford River to drill a well for the village.

No Witnesses

The accident occurred at 8:50 a. m. today and was not witnessed. The bodies of the men, one fallen over the other, were discovered on County Road 521 about three-quarters of a mile northwest of the Ford River bridge near the township hall.

The tragedy was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Meunier of Ford River when they drove up to the bodies of the men. They reported the accident to the office of Sheriff William E. Miron, and the investigation was made by Deputy Emil Johnson and Coroner Kevill Murphy.

Officers reported they believe the men were trying to flip a steel guy wire attached to a well drilling machine over the tops of some trees along the road. In their efforts to clear the trees the wire came into contact with the electric line, killing both men instantly.

Arrived Yesterday

The bodies were taken to St. Francis hospital where an examining physician pronounced both men dead. They were then removed to the Skradski funeral home at Gladstone to await word from relatives.

Hofacre was in charge of the drilling at Ford River. He and Baker arrived in Escanaba yesterday.

Wall Street Bigwig, Sought In Partner's Murder, Kills Self

Ashbury Park, N. J., Aug. 28 (AP) — The letters left behind by Henry M. Brooks, financier who was found dead by his own hand in a hotel bathroom here, constitute a confession of the murder of his former business partner, representatives of the Mercer County prosecutor's office said today.

While detectives traced Brooks' trail from the time of the shooting of his erstwhile partner, Joseph R. Watkins, Wednesday, Mercer County Prosecutor Mario Volpe said "there is no question in my mind that Brooks is the guilty man." Watkins' body was found in a car parked outside the Princeton Inn, which is in Mercer county.

Volpe said he had heard from authorities in Monmouth county, in which Ashbury Park is located, that one of the letters mentioned "the Princeton mess."

Police said that the gun which was found still clenched in Brooks' hand was the same caliber—32—as the gun with which Watkins was slain. Ballistics experts said, however, it would take several days to determine whether bullets from the same gun killed both men.

Navy 4-Engine Air Craft Sets Record

82½ Ton Plane Flies Hawaii To Chicago

Detroit, Aug. 28 (AP)—The Caroline Mars, big, four-engined flying boat, cracked a Navy distance record today when she passed over Ann Arbor, Mich., at 10:31 a. m. (EST) on a Honolulu-Chicago non-stop flight.

The 82½ ton ship turned back at Ann Arbor, altering plans to come the remaining 35 miles into Detroit.

The Naval Air Station at Grosse Ile, Mich., said she reported all well and said he expected to set down at Chicago ending a 4,748 mile trip that required 24 hours and 17 minutes.

No reason was given for her turning back at Ann Arbor.

She already had traveled roughly some 4,400 miles, to eclipse the record for a craft of that type.

The pilot, Lt. Comdr. Robert J. Hunt of Trenton, N. J., planned to circle the Grosse Ile Naval Air Station near Detroit, then head back for Chicago.

The dash to Grosse Ile would give the Mars a distance mark of 4,500 miles or more from the takeoff point in Hawaii. That would be the longest non-stop hop for a four-engine ship.

The current mark is 4,375 miles from Patuxent Naval Air Station in Maryland to Natal, Brazil.

Berlin, Aug. 28 (AP)—Four gun-brandishing Russians, including a red-bearded lieutenant colonel, staged a wild ride through the U. S. sector of Berlin last night. The American provost marshal's office said today they were pursued and shot at after they ran down an American military policeman who tried to halt them. The MP who was run down was Pfc. James R. Petergal, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Grave Political Crisis Faces France As Tenth Postwar Cabinet Fails

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES

Charles E. Hughes Dies At Age Of 86

Osterville, Mass., Aug. 28 (AP)—Charles Evans Hughes, retired chief justice of the United States who narrowly missed becoming president in 1916, is dead.

Hughes, secretary of state in the Harding and Coolidge cabinets and twice governor of New York, succumbed last night only a few hours after he was reported in critical condition from a heart ailment.

The 86-year-old former chief justice—the only American ever to be appointed twice to the U. S. supreme court—died at the Wilmans Club, where he had come on Aug. 5 to convalesce from an illness that had confined him to his Washington home for several months.

The former jurist's son, Charles Evans Hughes Jr., a New York attorney, said death was caused by a heart failure and uremic poisoning.

Sudden Relapse

The younger Hughes said his father had "shown marked improvement" but that he suffered "a sudden relapse" early this week.

Since leaving the nation's highest judicial post July 1, 1941, because of declining health, Hughes had spent most of his time living quietly and in relative obscurity in Washington.

He withdrew entirely from society circles upon the death of his wife on Dec. 6, 1945, and made his last public appearance at the funeral services of another chief justice, Harlan Fiske Stone, in April, 1946.

The former chief justice, whose neatly-trimmed white beard were perhaps the most famous whiskers in public life since Abraham Lincoln, was friendly and had a keen sense of humor.

He retained a secretary after his retirement to keep up a large correspondence with old acquaintances and handle other work which included preparation of records for future use by historians.

Ran Against Wilson

Hughes, who until his last illness continued a daily habit of taking brisk morning walks, was the second man in history to serve as both associate justice and chief justice.

Born in Glen Falls, N. Y., April 11, 1862, he entered Colgate at the Soviet Spy Probe May Go To Court

Chambers Accepts Hiss Challenge

Washington, Aug. 28 (AP)—The bitter dispute between Whittaker Chambers and Alger Hiss over who is lying to Congressional spy probes may be cleared up in a court room.

That possibility arose today after Chambers accepted a Hiss challenge to repeat publicly his Communist charges without benefit to Congressional libel immunity.

In a radio broadcast (MBS) last night, Chambers, a Time magazine senior editor, told interviewers that Hiss "was a Communist and may be now."

Hiss's attorney, John F. Davis, of Washington, said he would study the script of the "meet the press" broadcast to determine "if there is a basis for a suit."

Chambers, however, said last night he did "not think that Mr. Hiss will sue me for slander or libel."

Members of the House un-American activities committee have been trying for days now to decide which of the two men has been telling the truth in their sharply conflicting testimony before that group.

Chambers, who said he renounced Communism in 1937, has testified that Hiss was a leading member of a Red underground network which he served as a courier.

Blind Mother and Husband Arrested For Child Neglect

Los Angeles, Aug. 28 (AP)—A blind mother and her husband were in jail today on child neglect charges after officers reported that their 10-year-old daughter had been hung by her feet upside down, and sometimes chained to her brother, five.

Those held were Mr. and Mrs. Gordon G. MacDonald. The husband is an elevator operator. The children involved, said policeman G. B. Barber, who arrested the parents, were Darlene and Jeremiah.

Barber said also that the couple's two-year-old son, Wayne, had been tied to a chair and sometimes was fed only once a day.

Month-Old Marie Unit Checks Out

Move Mars French Part In Moscow Talks

Paris, Aug. 28 (AP)—The month old government of Premier Andre Marie resigned today over the issue of wages and prices which had plagued the coalition cabinet since its inception.

The toppling of the government, the 10th postwar French cabinet, plunged France into what may be one of its gravest political crises. Marie had been in office since July 27.

President Vincent Auriol hurriedly called in various political leaders, but then postponed the search for Marie's successor until later in the day.

Wage, Price Problem

The political instability of one of the four nations participating in the Moscow talks was outlined starkly as France was left technically without a foreign minister.

Former Premier Robert Schuman will, however, continue to fulfill the duties of foreign minister until a new cabinet is formed.

Schuman and finance minister Paul Reynaud conferred with Auriol early today.

The cabinet resignation came shortly after 1 a. m. Paris time, after an unsuccessful two-day struggle to draft wage and price reforms. The twin issues almost precipitated the fall of the cabinet earlier this month when Marie went before the national assembly to ask that the cabinet be given decree powers to effect financial reforms.

Finance Minister Reynaud was given the wide powers after making some concessions to the socialists.

Charles De Gaulle

The two-day cabinet discussions concerned Reynaud's plan for politically dangerous increases in the prices of such products as milk, bread, rail fares and tobacco.

Former Veterans Affairs Minister Andre Marius said the crucial point of the disagreement which brought about the cabinet's resignation concerned the amount of wage increases to be allowed to compensate for price rises.

Reynaud had agreed to raises of 10 per cent in wages, which still are controlled by the government. The socialists, worried about the reaction among their restless labor following, wanted an immediate salary increase of from 15 to 13 per cent.

Amidst the dilemma of French politicians, the figure of General Charles De Gaulle loomed large on the horizon. He and his followers in the Rally of the French People were expected to renew their pressure for dissolution of the legislature and new elections.

100,000 Cars Built In U. S. This Week

Detroit, Aug. 28 (AP)—The nation's auto factories built another 100,000 motor vehicles this week.

In the face of parts shortages and work stoppages due to excessive heat, the volume is impressive. Added to what already has been produced this year, it totals up to more than 2,400,000 passenger cars and about 935,000 trucks assembled so far in 1948.

This week's output included cars by every manufacturer except Hudson and Nash. Hudson assembly lines were down for the third week because of a supplier plant strike. Nash proceeded with the retooling of its assembly plants for 1949 model production.

Reds Continue Drive To Take Over Berlin

Things Are Tough All Over! River Of Beer Flows To Sea

Red Bluff, Calif., Aug. 27 (AP)—A river of beer—good beer too—flowed toward the sea today, alas. There were 124,000 gallons of it.

A federal judge said the beer had to be dumped. So there it goes now, with many a gurgle and a sigh, out past the brewery and thence along many a sad mile to the sea.

The beer flows from the canneries of the United States Brewing Corporation plant at Red Bluff. The plant is in a receivership-reorganization proceeding.

The judge said the corporation probably would lose money trying to bottle all that beer during the reorganization. Besides it would hold up reorganization, so dump her boys.

Charles Frizzell, the brewmaster, held wake as the taps were turned yesterday. No hound dog ever looked sadder as he watched the beer foam out into a ravine which leads to the Sacramento River half a mile away.

"I've sweated over it," said he. "I've nursed it, and I've pampered it. And here it goes—down the drain."

A few spectators mourned with Frizzell. (Word hadn't got around yet when they first turned the taps.) Most of them brought pitchers, meaning to carry away souvenirs of this dolorous occasion.

But even now the world flies like wild geese through the town.

Quit shoving, fellows! Plenty of time. This noble stream is expected to flow clear up until Monday.

'Sylvia' Composer, Oley Speaks, Dies

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—Oley Speaks, bachelor composer of some of America's best-known songs, died yesterday at the age of 74.

He also was noted as a concert singer.

Among the many songs he composed are "Sylvia," "Star Eyes," and "On the Road to Mandalay."

Born in Canal Winchester, Ohio, Speaks was a director of the American Society of Composers, authors and publishers from 1924 until 1943, when he retired because of ill health.

Lomakin Hints That He May Miss Boat

But Reservations Have Not Been Cancelled

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—Soviet Consul General Jacob M. Lomakin is scheduled to head back to Moscow today—but he hints he may miss the boat.

His job as consul general is finished. President Truman has officially revoked his credentials.

But Lomakin—key figure in events which led to a break in Soviet-American consular relations—indicated he is not certain he will make his scheduled departure for Russia.

Booked to sail on the Swedish-American liner, Stockholm, Lomakin was asked by newsmen yesterday if he would be aboard when the ship sails.

"I'm not sure," he replied.

Asked to answer further questions, Lomakin said he might do so later.

"Maybe," he said, "in two weeks."

Officials of the ship line said reservations for Lomakin and his family have not been cancelled.

In Washington, the state department left the way open for Lomakin to do as he pleases—for the present—about leaving this country.

14-Year-Old Boy Given 14 Years For Killing Girl

Chicago, Aug. 28 (AP)—A 14-year-old boy convicted last night of murdering a neighbor girl expressed surprise when the jury fixed his punishment at the minimum of 14 years imprisonment.

"I expected to get 37 years, or life, or the chair," he said. "I guess you can't get less than 14 years for murder."

The youth, Pudge Roy Adams was convicted of murdering eight-year-old Nancy Schuler by suffocation in the bedroom of his home May 27. The state did not ask the death penalty but prosecutors asked the jury of seven women and five men for a penalty of "many years in the penitentiary."

Soviet Chief Evades Pleas To Stop Riots

City Council May Quit Soviet Sector

Berlin, Aug. 28 (AP)—Berlin's Soviet commandant today evaded pleas by city council leaders that he protect their meetings from further invasions by Communist demonstrators. Then he passed the word to the Russian sector police.

A letter from the speaker, asking such protection, the commandant, Maj. Gen. Alexander Kotikov said he did not "understand" what was desired of him.

Kotikov was asked last night for assurances that City Hall—in the Soviet sector—would be kept clear of rioters, who have invaded it the past two days, forcing cancellations of assembly meetings.

'Clarifications'

His reply to the letter from Socialist Otto Suhr, speaker of the mainly non-Communist assembly, consisted of a series of counter questions and was front-paged today by the official Soviet press.

The commandant's reply requested a series of "clarifications" and asked why the city council did not apply to German police in City Hall district for protection.

These same police have stood idly by as Communists twice broke into City Hall, took over the council chambers and demanded the overthrow of the elected government, with the substitution of a hand-picked Communist-dominated regime.

Leaders of the council's non-Communist majority, convened early today to consider Kotikov's reply.

All Quiet Today

They have not announced their next step. It is believed, however, that if the Russians refuse to guarantee the council adequate protection the majority will decide to move into Western occupied sectors.

A move out of the Russian zone undoubtedly would result in the Communists trying to force a coup on the administration left in the Soviet sector.

All was quiet today at City Hall after two days of tumultuous demonstrations there by Communist marchers.

No attempt was made to reconvene the assembly today but some city executives were on duty at their offices.

Clews Fail To Identify Body Found On Shore

Fire-charred shoes and wallet, gold-rimmed bi-focal glasses and a gray cap were among the slim clews that today failed to reveal the identity of a man whose badly decomposed body was found near the shore of Green bay about 14 miles south of Escanaba.

Adding to the mystery was the report by Sheriff William E. Miron that two logs were charred by fire. It was between these logs that the body was found, one arm extending over the top of a log.

The gruesome discovery was made yesterday morning about 11 o'clock by Bill Williams of Bark River Rd. 1, who was walking along the shore searching for a net buoy.

Coroner Kevill Murphy of Escanaba and the sheriff said the body was that of a dark-haired man in his late 30's, about five feet eight inches tall, and weighing about 115-160 pounds.

He wore tan and white sports shoes, gray cap, a dark brown jacket that resembled an overall jacket, and dark trousers.

Death was believed to have occurred sometime this summer. The body was about 50 feet from County Road A-23 on the bay shore side, and about 35 feet from the shore. The location of A-23 is south of Star Dust Lodge and is a bay shore road off M-35.

The shoes were not on the body and the soles were burned. The wallet and a shaving brush were found near the shoes, some distance from where a fire had been built. The man's cap and glasses were on a log 20 feet north of the place where the body was found, wedged between two logs only 18 inches apart. A search of the man's pockets revealed only a two-cent stamp.

The contents of the wallet were nearly destroyed, although Sheriff Miron said papers revealed the name "Chicago" on one piece, and an illegible name written in ink on another fragment.

This morning George Hanson of 212½ North 11th street reported to the sheriff's office that he and Jake Williams of Ford River township saw a man on the shore in that location building a fire between two logs. That was on Aug. 18. The man was described by Hanson and his description was almost identical with that of the sheriff's office of the dead man.

Hanson said the man had his shoes off, but wore glasses. One other clue was picked up at the scene by officers. It was a green glass druggist's bottle with a black screw top.

Mrs. A. G. Buchman Of Iron Mountain Claimed By Death

Mrs. A. G. Buchman, 63, of Iron Mountain, a sister-in-law of Harry Buchman of Rapid River, and a former resident of Gwynn, died at her home in Iron Mountain Friday. She had been in ill health the past 12 years but continued to be active in civic affairs until a few weeks ago.

The former Gertrude Mossler, Mrs. Buchman was born in Lawrence, Kan., Aug. 8, 1885. She completed elementary education there and attended the University of Kansas receiving her master degree in speech, and attended the Columbia School of Expression in Chicago.

Mrs. Buchman served five years as head of the speech department of the fine arts division of the University of Kansas and then went to Marquette, Mich., where she served a year on the faculty, in the absence of Mrs. Rushmore. Later, Mrs. Buchman taught speech in River Falls Normal in River Falls, Wis. She also was active in Chautauqua with headquarters in St. Paul for two years, and worked with the University of Wisconsin in speech extension work.

She was married to Mr. Buchman in Rapid River Jan. 1, 1916, and then went with her husband to Gwynn where they operated a drug store. In 1922 the Buchmans opened a drug store in Iron Mountain.

While in Iron Mountain Mrs. Buchman organized the Little Theatre Guild, was a charter member of the Home Study club and was active in the Kingsford-Iron Mountain Woman's club. During World War II Mrs. Buchman was chairman of the volunteer services of Red Cross.

She is survived by her husband, a daughter, Mrs. John Clay, a son Robert who is in LaCrosse, Honduras, as Central American representative for a veneer company, and two grandchildren.

Brief services will be held at the Freeman Funeral home in Iron Mountain this afternoon with Rev. N. U. McConaughy officiating. The body will then be taken to Milwaukee for cremation in Forest Lawn cemetery.

Displaced Persons Survey To Be Made

A survey of Delta county farmers to determine whether they could or would accommodate 100 year-round farm workers from Lithuania, will be started Monday, it was revealed today by Whitney R. Dixon, manager of the Escanaba Office of the Michigan Unemployment Commission.

The announcement follows a meeting with representatives of the State Office Michigan Unemployment Compensation Commission and Lithuanian Relief Fund of America. The latter organization is charged with placing in employment in this country some 22,000 Lithuanians, under the Displaced Persons Act of Congress.

These people, consisting of youths up to 23 or 24 years of age, and family groups with parents 45 to 55 years old, are all skilled farm workers, some of them highly educated in European universities. Michigan's quota has been set at about 100 workers or family groups. They are skilled in general farming, dairy farming, and animal husbandry. Most of them speak Lithuanian, German, Polish, and Russian and have been screened as to skill, health, and moral standards.

Preliminary queries as to the prospects of placing these people will be made of county agricultural agents, followed by personal interviews with farmers as to their requirements. Certain wage and housing restrictions will be insisted upon before these people will be placed.

It was revealed that all Lithuanian men and women between the age groups now 23-24 and 45, were drafted for work in the Russian factories and farms, and never were able to escape.

Farmers interested are asked to contact their County Agricultural Agent or the MUCC office nearest their homes.

Upper Peninsula Bids For Industrial Plants

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of three articles presenting the story of Upper Michigan's bid for industrial development.)

Marquette, Mich.—With a large part of the nation's industry receiving advice as to the desirability of decentralization, the Upper Peninsula of Michigan is telling the world, through a well-planned program, of the industrial location advantages to be found north of the Straits of Mackinac.

Two factors concerning decentralization are emphasized by Upper Peninsula Development Bureau officials in publicizing the new industrial brochure containing specific facts about 37 communities in the area. They are:

1. The National Security Resources Board, charged with planning to coordinate military, industrial and civilian defense, is urging owners of factories in big industrial areas to decentralize if they want to play safe in wartime. Small towns, not big cities, offer the best sites for firms in any future war.

2. Industrial migration depends upon economic conditions. Following year-long surveys, Development Bureau, whose office is located in the city hall in Marquette, has prepared a brochure of the area's industrial location advantages in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Economic Development and the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Brochure Not Bulky
It's not a bulky, wordy affair. In fact less space is taken up by the analysis of industrial location factors of the 37 communities than is ordinarily used to tell the story of a single city.

"As a guide for management, it is a concise, accurate statement of the essential facts needed when making a choice of plant locations," the Bureau and Department of Economic Development state in explaining the book.

Individually and by area, the book analyzes these basic industrial location factors:

Production materials, labor, sites, industrial fuel, transportation facilities, market, distribution facilities, power, water, living conditions, laws and regulations, tax structure, climate.

Regarding the dispersal of plants in time of peace so as to be prepared for war, the Bureau points to the National Security Resources Board's suggestion that:

"Decentralization should be seriously considered by industry in its long-range planning, with a shift of new plants away from centers of industry. Small towns offer the best opportunity for industries seeking safety in the event of war. Plants in these areas are least likely to be the object of bombing attacks."

Cities of 50,000 or more people could become targets for enemy bombs. Safe factory sites should be at least 10 miles away.

There are no cities of that size in the Upper Peninsula, so it is reasonable to conclude, Bureau officials believe, that industrial sites in this area would not be logical bombing targets.

Advantages in U. P.
While some areas of the country have seen increased industrial activity and expansion in the last several years, moves of new industry to Upper Michigan has been on a small scale. Development Bureau chiefs would like industry to consider factors contained in its new book before shifting locations.

Such factors are data on the low-cost, high-quality production materials found in the Upper Peninsula, the supply of skilled and semi-skilled workers, available land and buildings, power, water and industrial fuel, transportation facilities, proximity to markets, distribution facilities, housing and living conditions, effect of tax rate, and laws regulating business.

"For the first time in the history of this, or any other region, the Upper Peninsula is now uniquely equipped to carry on an intensive campaign to bring new industry to its towns and cities," the Bureau says.

"Thirty-seven communities have completed industrial surveys which set forth briefly, but factually, the location advantages as they exist in each place. Narrative summaries of these surveys

U. P. Softball Tournament

ESCANABA is playing host to 51 of the best softball teams in the Upper Peninsula this weekend, the annual U. P. championship tournament. The importance of this tournament to Escanaba is considerable. Aside from the hundreds of softball players comprising the various teams, even more hundreds of fans from the surrounding communities will be in the city to witness the tournament games. The money that these people will leave in Escanaba for gasoline, food, lodging, entertainment, refreshments, etc., constitutes a considerable sum.

We would be less than honest if we did not concede that we appreciate the economic benefits to the community as a result of the U. P. softball tournament being conducted in Escanaba. However, the people of Escanaba are happy to be hosts to the softball teams and their fans for more than selfish reasons.

We are indeed proud of the fact that Escanaba has long been a leader in the promotion of softball in the Upper Peninsula. Over the years the Escanaba Softball Association has produced more championship teams than any other city in the peninsula. The popularity of the sport here is reflected in the heavy attendance of games at Memorial Park and other local diamonds during the season.

On the occasion of the U. P. tournament, we extend the greetings of the people of Escanaba to the competing teams from all sections of the peninsula and to their fans.

Pioneering In Alaska

PLANS FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT of a series of new colonies in Alaska, similar to the Matanuska project started in 1935, have been announced by the department of the interior. The proposal is subject to congressional approval and appropriation to carry it out.

The success of the Matanuska experiment prompted the plans to develop a series of such colonies to hasten the development of Alaska. Preference would be given to war veterans and their families.

The Matanuska colony was started in 1935 with 200 families, numbering about 1,000 persons, mostly from Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan. Many of the original families quit the project, disillusioned, but their properties were quickly taken over by other families. Today the Matanuska colony numbers more than 450 families.

The interior department feels that the Matanuska experience proves that once a settlement gets a good start, it will grow by itself.

Without government assistance, the development of the Alaskan territory would necessarily be extremely slow. The plan is to lay out a complete village in each home-stand area. Each farm would get up to five acres of free land clearing and long term loans with low interest for the remainder of the land clearing, for construction of farm buildings and purchase of necessary equipment and supplies. Arrangements also would be made for transportation.

The Alaskan development plan offers opportunities for families with pioneering inclinations and also constitutes a program for developing an American territory which is extremely important to the defense of the North American continent.

The War Is Over

HOTEL ASSOCIATION secretaries, meeting recently at East Lansing, were told by James H. Denison of Michigan State College that hotels no longer can get away with giving poor service to the public.

The war is over. Hotel guests, who put up with unswept rooms and other inconveniences during the war, now have a right to good service, Dr. Denison said.

Many travelers are staying away from the hotels that took advantage of them during the war. The rapid expansion of the tourist cabins is partially attributable to the hotels' failure to properly care for patrons in recent years, according to Dr. Denison.

The story of shoddy service and overcharging is not applicable only to the hotel industry. In recent years, there has been a tendency on the part of various segments of business to charge all the traffic will bear.

A few years ago, they were blaming it on the war; now, it's inflation.

Communist Uprising In Berlin

THE EXTREME DIFFICULTY in trying to reach a peaceful settlement of world problems with the Communists who dominate such a large portion of the world is complicated by the fact that the Communists are such staunch adherents to the principle of Might Makes Right.

The Reds have shown their support to this policy on many occasions. They tried it in Greece, only to be rebuffed by American intervention. Thursday the Communists seized control of the city hall in Berlin and set up a "rump" city administration.

Terror tactics have long been one of the potent weapons of Communism. The Berlin uprising by Communists was, of course, carefully planned and directed by the Russians. Russian-controlled newspapers in Berlin whipped up the demonstrators and urged them to march on the city hall. Russian secret police played a major part in the revolt and Russian army officers, wearing civilian clothes, mingled with the mob.

The Communist uprising in Berlin came at the very time the Western powers were negotiating with top Russian officials, including Marshal Stalin and Foreign Minister Molotov, for settlement of the Berlin problems. The incident shows once again how completely untrustworthy the Russians are in their dealings with foreign governments.

If the Communists continue to hold control of the city hall and seek to take over complete reins of government in Berlin, a complete break between Russia and the western powers in Berlin seems inevitable.

Nature And Human Nature

THE LUSH MONTH of August brings in to focus a comparison between nature and human nature in which the latter invariably suffers.

August, in this climate, carries the processes of nature to their full - blooming climax. The countryside is rich with thick greenery. The crops are ripe. The cattle are fat and sleek. The birds overhead are full-throated in song. The young life and little seeds of spring have come to maturity.

Contrasting bleakly with this well-ordered scene are the sad products of human nature—scarcities, soaring prices, the unholy spectacle of politics at its worst here at home and threats of war abroad.

A newspaper headline the other day said, "Scientists, Apes, Elephants Match Wits at Zoo." Without knowing anything about the case, a wise man would bet on the apes and the elephants. Man still reigns supreme as the dumbest animal.

Yet, there is this compensation. As long as the processes of nature continue to operate on schedule year after year, as they have for centuries, and as long as the earth continues to produce mighty oaks from little acorns—as long as this greatest of production assembly lines shows no sign of a break-down, there is still hope. As long as nature remains unimpaired, there may be a future for human nature.

BRIDGE ONLY SOLUTION

(Sault Ste. Marie News)

More and more vacationing thousands in Michigan are asking "What's the answer?" at the Straits of Mackinac.

The answer is simple: A bridge. It has been advocated perhaps for half a century and its inevitability is beginning to overpower Michigan. In years past only during peak periods of July 4, Labor Day and the hunting season were delays to be expected. Now with thousands fighting to get to the Peninsula, delays are week-end occurrences, even with all ferries operating full tilt.

The state of Michigan knows there is a law of diminishing returns. It knows any increase in the number of ferries would be financially unsound, because the ferries are already losing money. The loss would be more if there were more ferries. It knows that an increase in rates would have the effect of cutting down the Straits traffic and garroting Northern Peninsula economy. If anything, we should have a decrease in rates to further stimulate travel to the Upper Peninsula.

The state is between the so-called devil and the deep blue sea: Further and greater deficits through additional ferry operation, and lower rates.

We repeat, as we have been repeating for decades, the inevitable and final solution is a bridge.

MORE UNFAIRNESS ON ASSESSMENTS

(Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph)

Unfairness of the present tax assessment practice was made even more obvious by the spot check of assessed value, final tax evaluation and sale price of homes here. There is something radically wrong when a house is assessed at $1000, pays taxes on a value of $4378 and is sold for $7000. There is rank unfairness when one house is assessed at $1200 and an almost identical house next door is assessed at $2000.

We do not believe that an owner should pay the present rate of taxes on a house at full cash value. That would almost double the tax bill for the $7000 house. But the tax should be equitable. It is not at present. Some people are paying more taxes than they should while others are paying far less than they should.

The assessment practice in Illinois is unbelievably bad. The weak link is the township assessor. A better method of assessing property on at least a county-wide basis must be provided.

Take My Word For It

Frank Colby

SATURDAY WORD FEST

Salt Lake: I have been told that "woman" and "imbecile" are derived from the same root word. Can you enlighten me?—E. M.

Answer: Some misogynist must have started that one (misogynist is a six-bit word for "woman hater"). Woman is from the Anglo-Saxon wifmann, literally "wife-man," the word man meaning originally "human being."

Imbecile is from the Latin imbecillus, "feeble; without support." Since im- means "not; without," and -becillus appears to be related to baculum, "a stick or staff," the word apparently suggested the utter feebleness of a weak person deprived of his staff or walking stick.

Many Migrate To Northwest

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Portland, Ore.—The discovery of oil in Southern California marked the beginning of an industrial revolution that transformed the Southwest into one of the most populous areas in the country. Cheap hydroelectric power promises to work the same kind of revolution here in the Northwest.

That is the belief, at any rate, of those who have watched the extraordinary migration into this state. The census bureau estimates a population increase of more than 40 per cent in the past seven or eight years. That is to say, more people have come into Oregon in the past decade than during the previous 90 years.

This is a significant fact in connection with the centennial of the founding of Oregon Territory now going on here. The next seven or eight years will see an increase of at least another 40 per cent, according to perfectly rational observers.

LUMBER PRICES HIGH

But if there are to be jobs for these thousands of new workers, drastic changes must occur. Today, roughly 55 per cent of the economy is based on the forests and forest products. Lumber is bringing fantastic prices with apparently no end to the demand.

For most of the cutting, however, the end is in sight. Fly-by-night outfits in response to the boom, are taking down the last of the easy timber.

These cut-and-run loggers, as they are called out there, leave nothing behind. The big lumber firms have developed a conscientious policy of planting for future timber crops. But this is for the distant future and these firms cannot take up the employment slack left when the cut-and-run loggers are finished.

The answer lies in the full and integrated use of the water resources of the Columbia river system. That means not merely more dams. In the opinion of serious students of the problem such as E. B. MacNaughton, chairman of the First National Bank of Portland, it means management of these water resources by an authority similar in pattern to the Tennessee Valley Authority.

There is, however, powerful opposition to the authority plan and relatively little organized support for it. As a substitute, separate state authorities are being pushed. This concept is believed to have the backing of private utility interests.

But the turbulent Columbia is not confined within the borders of a single state. To release the vast power that is now wasting as it flows to the sea, management would have to cross Oregon and Washington boundaries and go into British Columbia, as well.

SPENDING WARTIME SAVINGS

The present boom undoubtedly owes a great deal to the millions that were poured into this area in federal spending during the war. It is possible that it is being sustained in the face of present sky-high prices by those who are being compelled to spend surpluses accumulated in the war years.

Significant figures show that for the first six months of this year the purchase of federal savings bonds was running considerably behind the redemption of those bonds in Portland, and in the 12th Federal Reserve district. Thus, in Portland in the six months ending June 30, $20,116,000 in E bonds were bought while owners of those bonds turned them in for cash in the amount of $31,465,000.

For the country as a whole, purchase is still running ahead of redemption—the figures for the six-month period being sales of $2,588,000,000 and redemptions $2,220,000,000. But for the month of June in Portland, redemptions were nearly twice as large as sales.

There are other signs that point to a drying up of purchasing power indicating a recession or perhaps even a depression. But a depression would be criminal folly and stupidity.

NEW HIGHWAYS NEEDED

You realize this more and more where the potentials are so great. It is not alone new dams that need building. The whole highway system must be rebuilt for modern needs.

For example, Highway 101 from Portland to San Francisco is one of the most beautiful scenic highways in the world. But along its innumerable twists and turns are huge log trucks, and the accident rate is appalling. From the point of view of national defense the North-South highway system is pitifully inadequate.

Perhaps modern, safer highways could be constructed on which motorists and truckers could be charged a modest toll. This has worked successfully in the East. If fear and traditionalism do not bear down too heavily, imagination and inventiveness will find a way to release the forces for growth inherent here.

He insists that "stage-struck" and "stage fright" mean the same. I say no. Who wins the $5 bet?—Mrs. J. J. H.

Answer: Hold out your hand and demand payment, Mrs. H. "Stage-struck" is an adjective meaning "a mania for being or acting an actor." "Stage fright" is a noun meaning "fear of appearing before an audience." The radio term is "mike fright."

Ft. Wayne: All my acquaintances pronounce oleomargarine as "OH-leo-oh-MAHR-yuh-rin." But the dictionaries show the last syllable as "reen." Are we Hoosiers ignorant?—E. L. W.

Answer: By no means. Your pronunciation is Standard American. There are many "correct" pronunciations in the dictionaries that no one ever uses. One often wonders if lexicographers are people.

Do you know how to read the obscurest vowel symbols in the dictionary? To obtain a copy of Mr. Colby's new leaflet, C-19, on the obscurest vowels in English, send 5 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to him, care of Escanaba Daily Press, P. O. The Danube Blues

Good Evening

By Clint Dunathan

INSPECTION —J. M. Spurrier of Terre Haute, Ind., inspector for the federal bureau of prisons, was in Escanaba the other day to inspect the Delta county jail.

I asked him if the inspection was an annual one and he replied by pointing out that it was annual in a sense. There is at least one each year. But because there are only six such inspectors in the whole United States they have a hard time doing more than getting around to most of the jails once a year.

His report covers the condition of the jail and its operation and includes 13 headings from Administration to Sanitary Facilities. He said the reports are filed with the bureau in Washington, D. C., and counties are supplied with a report only when conditions are bad enough to warrant correction, or when a report is requested. "There's nothing wrong with your jail except that it's old," he replied when I pressed him for some comment.

LONG DISTANCE —Robert W. Beninger, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Beninger of 1418 Second avenue south, called up his parents a short time ago and talked with them for six minutes. The only unusual thing about the conversation was the distance between Robert and his parents. Robert was telephoning from Paris.

He has been in Europe since January, 1947, studying to enter the United States diplomatic service. First at Stockholm University, then to the Sorbonne in Paris, he is now learning Russian, German and Spanish at Heidelberg in Germany. When he returns he will reenter Georgetown University to complete his education for a diplomatic career.

"The communication was very clear except for a few seconds when Robert's voice faded out and we could hear the telephone operator speaking in French," said Mr. Beninger.

HIS FATHER'S SON—At a Lions club meeting at Rock prior to the U. P. State Fair the fair queen contestants were guests, and made a pleasing impression upon the Lions. According to an informant, one Lions club member announced that he would like to have the tail twister fine his father "for getting married so soon."

"If my father had married four years later, I would be four years younger and the right age to escort these young ladies," explained the Lion gallantly.

THE GOOD TURN—Mrs. Daris Compton of Cameron, Wis., and a woman companion sat on a ledge beside the William Bonifas gymnasium building to rest Wednesday afternoon. When they left Mrs. Compton forgot her handbag containing a considerable sum of money.

The white handbag was found there a short time later by Gordon Hermes, 200-pound tackle of the St. Joe squad, who immediately took it to the rectory of St. Joseph's church. The police were notified and soon Mrs. Compton and her handbag were reunited so much to her gratification that she insisted on rewarding Gordon.

similar incidents when you ponder the "youth problem" of America, and remember that our juvenile delinquents are in the minority although they usually get the headlines.

COMPLAINT—John I. Beilaire of Manistique, recognized as the chief promoter of the Big Spring, writes to complain that the Big Spring miniature at the U. P. State Fair this year was damaged by "acts of vandalism on the part of certain boys who were allowed to roam alone about the fair grounds, unrestricted and to do as they please."

Mr. Beilaire describes the damage and writes that he doubts he will try to reproduce the model of the Big Spring at the fair another year "unless there is some protection from this vandalism."

Mr. Beilaire adds that he arranged the Big Spring exhibit a couple days before the fair opened and did not see it again until the last day of the fair, a week later. I believe that in justice to the young people who attended the fair, including the thoughtless persons who damaged the Big Spring exhibit, it would be well to point out that such an exhibit should not go a full week without some maintenance. When we saw the Big Spring replica it was an unsightly mess, a collection place for blown or thrown paper and trash. It would be better for the reputation of the real Big Spring if the exhibit were discontinued at the fair.

MESSY PLACE—Even with almost constant attention many exhibits look extremely sad by the end of fair week. The flower section is withered and wilted, the vegetables are shrunken, and many of the outdoor exhibits are much the worse for wear.

By conservative estimate more than 50,000 persons attended the U. P. state fair. By the appearance of the fair grounds at the end of fair week most of them brought at least five paper-wrapped articles and threw the paper away. A lot of this paper accumulated in the Big Spring exhibit.

(For Hal Boyle)

Washington, (AP)—In the year 2000 A. D., and old man sat in the warm sunshine and this is the story he told to the boy who lay in the grass beside him:

The year 1955, my son, will always be celebrated with rejoicing as "The Year of the Great Command."

It seems strange to you, perhaps, that the world once lived in bloodshed and suffering and fear. But your history books tell you I am speaking truth.

Once the nations of the world and their people stumbled along in fear of each other and the future. The scales of fear can blind men's souls to obvious paths of truth.

And then it happened—just when angry, frightened nations were preparing to destroy themselves by atomic warfare.

The Miracle came as bells were tolling in the New Year. Suddenly there was a hush. Then a bolt of lightning flashed and a golden glow lighted the heavens. And His voice said: "I Command you—Do unto others as ye would that others do unto you!"

In every land and in every language, people saw and heard this Miracle. And the scales of fear fell away. They knew in their hearts that the great mass of men—of every race and color and creed—was seeking the same goal of human dignity, freedom, and happiness. And they saw that simple honesty and kindness held the solution to their troubles.

Oh, it was a great year, I tell you. Changes came so fast we could hardly grasp their meaning.

A few weeks after The Miracle, a Russian plane landed at the Washington airport and Josef Stalin stepped out. The news threw the world into an uproar, and lights burned in chancelleries around the world.

The President rushed down to meet Stalin and take him to the White House as his guest. Thousands of people milled in the streets day and night to get a glimpse of the visitor and to learn why he was there.

A few days later the White House issued the famous joint statement which laid the basis for our world constitution and meant peace for all time. They agreed to work for the union of nations as we now know it, in which each nation submits to the will of the majority.

The American-Russian bloc led the way at the world conference of nations in Paris. Agreement on all major issues came fast—once no one tried to gain an unfair advantage.

A world congress was formed. Travel barriers were wiped out. Men were free to travel wherever they wished on the earth. And that, my son, is more important than you might think. In this way the people of the world were learning for the first time to understand and love each other.

After The Miracle, my son, people learned to laugh again—at themselves and each other. The lines went out of their faces and the worry from their eyes. They found that hate and selfishness had been born of fear.

And He never had to remind them again of His command.

The boy looked up and said: "Hey, Grandpa! Why have you been so quiet all this time?"

The old man stirred and smiled. "I've been dreaming, son. I guess I must have dozed."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington.—It is the Washington Merry-Go-Round's pleasure and privilege today to present the brass ring for outstanding performance of duty to a singularly devoted and patriotic public servant.

He is Tracy S. Voorhees, assistant secretary of the Army.

It is especially fitting that he be singled out for public recognition because Voorhees and his uniquely distinguished work have long merited it. In all of Washington, no one has served the country more earnestly, tirelessly and brilliantly. Yet, outside of Voorhees' immediate official orbit, he is virtually unknown.

This modesty is very characteristic of him. More than one of his accomplishments have been headline news, but he doesn't function that way. Grandstanding or limelight-grabbing is out of his ken.

To Tracy Voorhees only one thing matters: Getting a job done as efficiently, expeditiously, and for the greatest good that is possible.

All the rest is of no consequence to him. He really believes that work well done is its own best record. The remarkable thing is that this belief has worked out that way for Voorhees. Wholly lacking in political "pull," and without his seeking the office, he recently was elevated to assistant secretary of the Army solely because of his outstanding record and qualifications for the position.

VETERAN

Voorhees has been serving his country unobtrusively and devotedly for a long time. He started in the early days of the war.

Then over 50 and a senior partner of a highly successful New York law firm, of which the late Chief Justice Harlan Stone had once been a member, Voorhees instantly dropped his large practice to respond to an urgent call from his old friend Robert Patterson, then under-secretary of war. Patterson needed a hard-headed and driving trouble-shooter to go to the ends of the world to straighten out critical Army snarls.

From then on, as an Army colonel, Voorhees was constantly on the go. Wherever stupidity, incompetence and bungling SNAFUed the channels of supply, he moved in and quietly and effectively brought order and action.

In the tropical depths of the South Pacific he unravelled a tangle that had created a serious shortage of blood plasma.

Although huge quantities of plasma had been shipped to the theater, combat commanders bombarded Washington with irate complaints of shortages. Voorhees unearthed the reason.

On some islands, no longer in the active zone, he found medical supply officers hoarding large quantities of plasma.

Similarly, in England, he quietly again saved the Medical Corps' neck on hospital equipment. Voorhees found tremendous discrepancies in the preparations for taking care of invasion casualties. Certain brass-hats had previously underestimated requirements. Voorhees quickly and efficiently brought over the needed equipment.

In recognition of these, and other outstanding feats, Voorhees was decorated with the distinguish service medal.

ARTIFICIAL LIMBS

After Patterson become secretary of war, he again asked Voorhees to undertake a difficult job in behalf of veterans who had lost limbs. With the war over, Voorhees had doffed his uniform. But he again responded without question.

Under Patterson's prodding, Army medical brass had belatedly, in the spring of 1945, started a program to improve artificial limbs. These devices were still in the oxcart stage. They were cumbersome, crude and ineffectual.

However, despite the good intentions of the Army's tardy development program, it soon bogged down in administrative SNAFU. Voorhees quietly reorganized the setup and put the project on a practical working basis.

He is still keeping a helpful supervisory eye on the program. Under it, real progress is being made in developing truly modern and efficient artificial limbs. There have been no miracles, but slowly and steadily advances are being made that offer hope, that if the program is continued over a period of years, devices will be evolved that in a measure will approximate the utility of human limbs.

For this, every amputee in the country, veteran or civilian, owes Tracy Voorhees a lasting debt of gratitude.

GREAT FE

Sneeze Time Here For Hayfeverites; Ragweed Pollen Spearheads Attacks

It's the little things that cause all of the trouble in life for sufferers of hayfever.

Only one-half of one-thousandth of an inch across, the spore of the ragweed makes a lot of people miserable in this country. The black blob at the right is a ragweed pollen spore magnified 3,300 times. Note the irritatingly sharp points.

Ragweed is the principal cause of hayfever and asthma and grows profusely all over the country. You will find it growing along the roads in almost every county. You will find it growing along the roads in almost every county in the Upper Peninsula, and in vacant lots in almost every community.

Some areas now comparatively free of ragweed have made a determined effort to keep the weed out. This has been accomplished notably in the Copper Country. Elsewhere the battle against the villain ragweed has been given up and its spread threatens to contaminate hitherto pollen-free areas.

Pollen Is Airborne

In the Upper Peninsula the pollen begins to show up in quantities about the last week in August and continues high until mid-September. Pollen counts are taken by the state health department from slides exposed in several Upper Peninsula communities. Counts as high as 117 pollen grains per cubic yard of air have already been reported.

On quiet days the pollen count is less because it requires wind to "dust off" the pollen and transport it through the air. Ragweed pollen, one of the lightest of pollens, has been known to travel for 100 or more miles in large quantities.

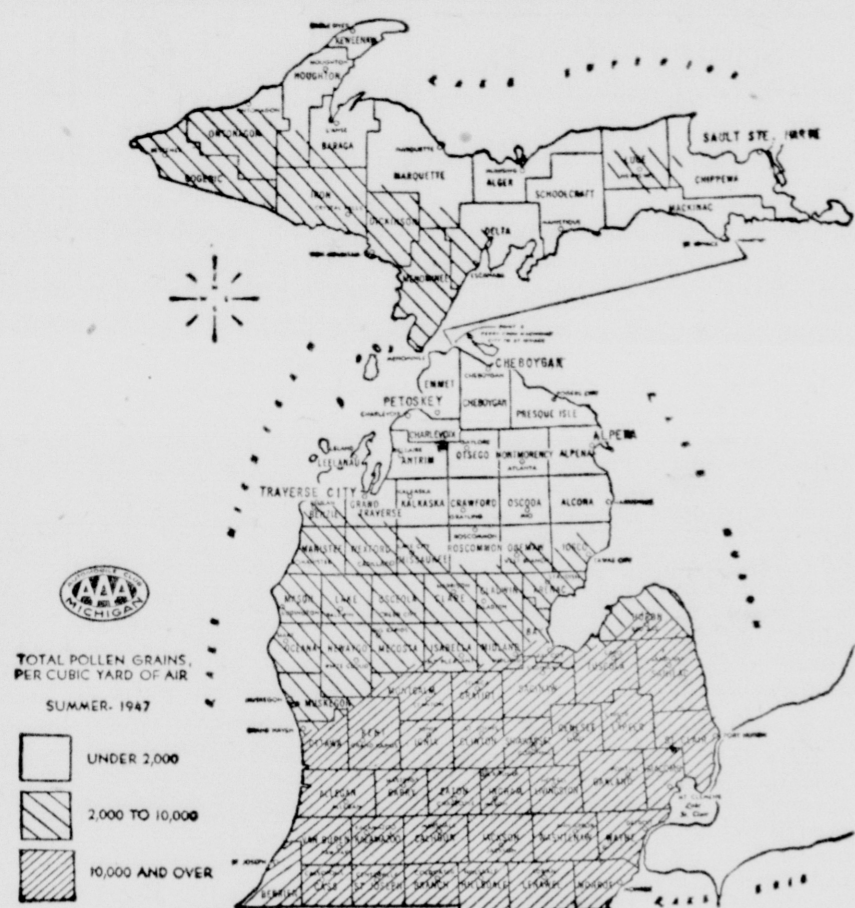

Ragweed grows and blooms regardless of the weather, however, and it is little affected by drought, rains, or low temperatures. There are two varieties, annual and perennial, both hardy.

The "critical point" for allergic persons depends upon individual "tolerance," some may suffer with 100 granules per cubic yard of atmosphere while others may require several hundreds. Others may not display hayfever symptoms until the count hits the thousand or more mark.

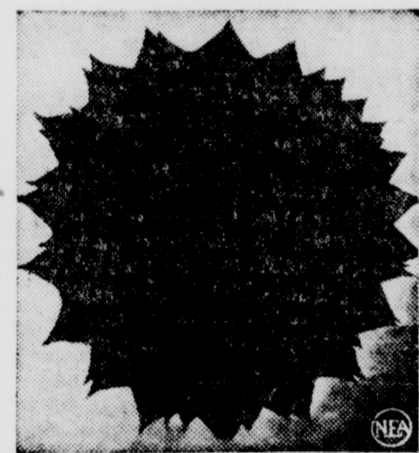

Michigan 'Half Free'
Often accused but seldom guilty is the goldenrod, a plant that flowers at this time of year. The pollen of the goldenrod is heavy and does not carry far in the air, while ragweed causes 95 per cent of all the hayfever symptoms.

Nearly half of Michigan is free of ragweed pollen in irritating quantities, according in Automobile Club.

High on the list of spots recommended for sneeze sufferers are

Michigan's pollen density map.

This is the cause.

This the effect.

St. Ignace, Sault Ste. Marie, Cheboygan, Charlevoix, Rogers City, and parts of the Copper Country. All these places had pollen counts of less than 1,000 last year.

Other cities with counts totaling less than 1,500 (comparatively strong relief) were: Petoskey, Houghton, Mackinac Island, Manistique, Munising, Isle Royale, Alpena, Traverse City. But just where the hayfever sufferer will have to go to find relief must be determined by individual experiment. Each case is different in the amount of pollen required to cause the distressing hayfever symptoms.

Old and New

Ragweed season begins about Aug. 15 and continues to bother hayfever victims until the first heavy frost, usually about the last of September in much of Michigan. Wooded areas, seashores and mountains seem to give the most relief—yet the only places in the United States that are completely free of ragweed and related pollens are Puget Sound and Western Oregon. In addition to places in Michigan recommended as relief areas, the Pacific Northwest, parts of Idaho and Yellowstone National Park are high on the pollen-free list.

Work on hayfever-fighting drugs is being continued by many scientists, with the possibility that sufferers may be aided in the future by better understanding of the chemical effects of various salts in combination with antihistamine drugs.

Reaction between such allergy drugs as benadryl, pyribenzamine, neo-antergan, antistim, and trantestin and a salt such as potassium chloride led the researchers to suppose that the metallic part of the salt affects the anti-histaminic action of the drug. They, therefore, experimented with similar salts to learn the effect of magnesium, calcium and strontium salts in the same situation.

COLLEGE LIFE HAS CHANGED

Study Was Minor Back In Ruark's Days

New York — With the college season about to open, it suddenly occurs to me that I have seen not one indication since the war that higher education can be fun. Maybe it isn't, any more. Maybe that's one of the things that's wrong with us.

When I was coming along, Joe College was a national symbol. His doings were important. He wore flamboyant garb, swigged extensively from a hip flask, raised a lot of fuss, and was forever pictured in the company of screaming coeds, half in and half out of a quaking flivver.

Big, expensive magazines catered to him. The defunct "College Humor," I remember, cost 35 cents a helping when 35 cents had some dignity. The big movie studios made A-pictures about campus life. This youth, halfway between pimples and paternity, was news—and he was regarded with amusement, some awe, and not a little respect by his elders. "That's Joe Smith—he's a college man," was muttered in the same tone reserved for aviators, actresses and professional baseball players.

Still Had Racoon Coats
I came along on the rag end of the John Held Jr. era, which is to say I had a slicker, but never painted things like "Hit Me Easy, I'm Getting Old" on it. My pants were not so broad as elder brother's, but they were broad enough. The racoon coat had not entirely passed from the scene, and the fine art of chasing dames was still a long lan ahead of the science of physics, as a sport.

There were, of course, some very creamy grinds around—young men with lank hair, long upper-lips, pipes, and a small, pocket-volume of improving literature always in the sassy tweed coat. There were some wounding women who professed a fondness for Marcel Proust, and who claimed an understanding of philosophy. These, I recall, always had mousy hair, bad legs, and limitless leisure of an evening. In the lines of the limerick, nobody asked them, at all.

They had just discovered "liberalism." Communism, and all the other isms. They wrote stinging editorials in the college paper, and always frightened me with their vast knowledge. I have recently seen two of the heaviest liberal thinkers of my time. One, well-barbered, works for the Wall Street Journal. The other, a near Miss Communist now, also clean-shaven, runs a thriving business and is regarded as a barrister in his city. A third, whose skull was so oppressed by knowledge that he was held in awe even by the professors, is now a clerk.

But the heaviest segment of us had no serious bone in our head. We learned enough, by rote, to fend off a flunk, and the rest of the time we gamboled aimlessly as a herd of colts. We sat up all night playing poker, and cut classes, and drank as much bootleg corn liker as we could afford—which wasn't much—and cussed after the girls with happy hunting cries. The classroom was a minor penance we paid for four years of unsupervised capering.

Those Bull Sessions
We bulled about sex and religion and football, but we were depressed not by the atom. We hitchhiked everywhere. Dancing was more important than jet-propulsion. An economic tailspin had started but nobody fretted about it much—graduation was a long time away, and you could always ship out on a tramp steamer.

It was a time of magnificent irresponsibility. I remembered one night three of us went for a ride in a cut-down roadster. The moon was shining real pretty, in Chapel Hill, N. C., and it seemed a shame to go home. So we didn't. We went to Montreal, Canada, instead. I have been exposed to considerable college youth, of late, and find it grim. It is too well-disciplined, seems as though. It knows all about economics and world affairs and geopolitics and the newest trend in everything, and studies with the passionate intensity of an assistant prof who is bucking for a full professorship. It is glum, and worried, and full of responsibility to the world.

This may be noble, attuned to the hour, and highly commendable. But it looks pretty deadly, in view of the rumpus we raised. And I was never the boy to knock a rumpus, because there is plenty of trouble and stern care to supply everybody, after the ink is on the sheepskin.

Women of the Upper Peninsula are being offered a new opportunity to enter a field in which they will find steady employment and at the same time provide a vitally needed service—the field of practical nursing.

The well trained practical nurse is in growing demand in Michigan and all over the country. There is a shortage of professionally trained nurses caused by an increasing demand for professional nursing service in administrative, supervisory and teaching positions.

A new development in Michigan, the training of practical nurses is expected to materially aid in supplying persons fitted to care for the chronically ill, those recovering from severe illness, and for mothers and babies. The

In the Upper Peninsula the training center is at Marquette, where the next course will open on Sept. 13. The course is for one year and is open to persons 18 to 50 years of age of good health, aptitude and ability. Following four months class work there is eight months of hospital practice in either a hospital at Ishpeming or at Sault Ste. Marie.

Starting at the fifth month the student is paid $3 per day for a five-day week, and this is increased to $4 a day at the start of the ninth month. Total cost of the one-year course is $76 and "opportunity jobs" during the course aids in meeting the student's costs.

Elaine Condory,
Joseph Miller
Married Today

In a ceremony of the late summer season which took place this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's church, Elaine Joyce Condory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Condory, 617 North 18th street, became the bride of Joseph Jay Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Miller, of 629 North 18th street.

Rev. Fr. Arnold Thompson, celebrant of the nuptial high mass, read the marriage rites.

Gladioli of varied shades were arranged on the altars as a setting for the service. St. Patrick's choir, with Mrs. William Ramspeck, organist, sang the music of the mass and Mary Ellen Servant, soloist, sang "Ave Maria" at the offertory.

The bride, who approached the altar with her father, who gave her in marriage, had as her attendants, her sister, Mrs. Robert Cavill, who was matron of honor, and Miss Kathlyne Rousseau, who was bridesmaid. Robert Miller was best man for his brother, and Robert Cavill was groomsmen. Ushers were Edward Anderson and William Miller.

The bride wore traditional white bridal satin, fashioned with a scalloped neckline, fitted bodice with a row of tiny satin covered buttons down the back, long tapered sleeves and a full skirt with a court train. Her fingertip veil, edged with embroidered lace, was gathered to a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white annual larkspur, centered with shaded rubrum lilies, and tied with a wide satin bow.

Gowns Identical
The matron of honor wore misty green and the bridesmaid, pale orchid. The gowns of sheer nylon were fashioned alike with fitted bodices, cap sleeves, drop yokes edged with ruffling and full skirts. Their open crown hats had poke brims and plumes of the same color and their elbow length mitts were of the same material of the gowns. They carried bouquets of pink and orchid larkspur and gladioli with pink ribbons.

Mrs. Condory attended her daughter's wedding in a salmon pink dress with which she wore black accessories and a corsage of camellias. Mrs. Miller wore a yellow and black print with white accessories and a like corsage.

A three-tiered wedding cake, topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom, with garden flowers and tall white tapers decorated the table for the wedding breakfast which was served to 35 guests in the Rainbow Room of Belle's Coffee shop. A reception for 75 guests is being held at the bride's home, gladioli and garden flowers in the same color scheme of pink and white, forming the decorations.

Wedding Guests
The couple will leave on a wedding trip to Milwaukee and Chicago. For traveling the bride is wearing a pink gabardine suit with black accessories and a corsage of lilies. They will live in Escanaba at 1011 Ludington street.

The bride, who was graduated from Escanaba high school in 1946 is now employed at the Photo Art shop. Mr. Miller, who also attended the Escanaba schools, is with the Chicago & North Western Railway.

Guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Del LaCombe, Green Bay; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dirksen and Mr. and Mrs. Orville Dirksen, Iron Mountain; Joseph LaCombe and Laura and Ernest Dubie, Nadeau; Mr. and Mrs. Roland Wiesner, Menominee; Mrs. Jack Donovan, Bark River; and Robert Miller of Milwaukee.

The Saddle
Shoe Set

By Teen Ager

Only 25 couples attended the "Shutter Bug Ball" held by the Escanaba Youth Association at the Escanaba Golf club Thursday evening. Although the attendance was only half of that expected, those who attended had one very enjoyable evening.

Many of the girls were dressed formally, while others came semi-formal. A grand march, which took place at 12 o'clock, was led by Loretto Stack and Charles Beggs.

Life-size paper figures of Daisy Mae, Lil' Abner and Ol' Man Mose were used as background for comic candids.

During the evening, Rev. James Bell and George Grenholm led square dancing sessions and game playing.

You teen-agers who complain that nobody ever plans things for the younger set to do, would do well to listen to this piece of advice. You have been given recently the reins to a new organization, the Escanaba Youth Association. Entertainment of all kinds is yours for the asking, if you'll only ask for it and then attend the event which you've requested.

Seems a very small thing to ask, and yet when an event like that held Thursday evening is sponsored, only 25 couples attend.

Mrs. Stack Smith, who has put forth so much effort to make this new organization a successful one, has announced that she will resign her position of head of youth activities in Escanaba. One must admit it is extremely disheartening to plan things and then receive cooperation from so few.

The meeting which was to be held tomorrow for the planning of the year's activities of this organization, has been cancelled. You Jr.-teens and Hi-teens are now on your own, unless you show a stronger interest and show it actively.

They say—"A word to the wise is sufficient."

A dip in the deep was taken the other day by sea dogs, Jack

Edick, Carl Nelson and Chuck Beninger and Jim Moran in Jim's gull. Seems all poor Jim was doing was operating the tiller, while his buddies (going on the assumption that you can't capsize a gull no matter how hard you try), made the boat heel to one side until—the finally proved that there's an exception to every rule.

Steve Beggs will leave shortly for Detroit where he and Rev. James Bell will attend a conference of all Presbyterian camp moderators. Steve was chosen moderator at Presbytery Point in the recent senior camping expedition. His position corresponds to that of president of an organization.

No junior bridge week next Thursday because of the Labor day holiday. It is expected that the league will be held the following Thursday, Sept. 9, however.

Home-Of-Week Fits Current Demand For Small Cottage Plans

Simple, attractive, economical to build and maintain, "The Bradford," four-room Home-of-the-

Week presented today by Plan Service, seems to meet very well the current demand for small cottage plans.

While designed for a lot with a 50-foot frontage, in sections where building laws permit this cottage could be built on a 40-foot site. Its outside dimensions are but 30' x 26' and the total cubage has been held down to 16,400 feet. Minimum requirements have stairs to the basement descend from it, adjacent to the kitchen.

Spacious Closets
 The two bedrooms measure 11 feet, six inches by 10 feet and 11 feet, six inches by 11 feet, respectively. Each room has windows on two exposures and a spacious clothes closet. Located off the hall, the modern bathroom is convenient to both bedrooms.

Since no provision is made for a dining room in this plan, the living room can be used for formal dinners and similar occasions. Measuring 17½ feet by 10 feet, the kitchen is located across the hall from the dining room.

The range and a built-in cupboard fill one inside wall of the kitchen, while the refrigerator can be placed against the other inside wall. A working counter is built against the long outside wall, with the sink located under the window looking out on the rear yard. The service entrance is at the end of the working counter. The second inside wall, broken by a window, is left open to accommodate a breakfast suite.

In the full basement the heating unit could be placed under the kitchen, and the laundry tubs under the bathroom. This would have the larger part of the basement available for use as a store also been maintained in the specifications in order to conserve materials.

A slight setback in the roof adds little to the cost but much to the appearance of the finished dwelling. This one detail alone lifts the house from the "ordinary cottage" classification. Incidentally, a brown or red fire resistant shingled roof will look well with buff-painted sidewalls and red trim. With white sidewalls, either black or green roof and trim is recommended.

The sidewalls may be covered with either shingles or clapboards, depending on the owners' preference, and market conditions.

Flanked by simple iron railings, the stock front door opens into a 17x12-foot living room. A coat closet in the far corner of this room backs against the outside chimney. Two windows give cross lighting and the long wall spaces facilitate the arrangement of furniture. Another doorway, opening into the inner hall, is located across the room from the front entrance. This inner hall connects all rooms and provides complete circulation through the house.

In the hall a coat closet and linen closet are located and the

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Norman Kee, who passed away one year ago today, August 28, 1947:

One year ago today Our dearest treasure passed away Our wife and mother.

Long days, long nights your pain Waiting for cure but all in vain, God saw that you were suffering And the hills were hard to climb, So he closed your weary eyes and Whispered, "Peace be Thine."

Sadly missed by Mr. Norman Kee and family

EYE IS CUT IN ODD ACCIDENT

Robert Pilon Victim Of Boy's Wild Pitch

Robert Pilon, 14, city, received a cut over the left eye which required two clips to close Friday in an odd accident while at play. Bob was using a pair of field glasses loaned to him by a friend. He was looking through them while standing ten or more feet from where Dick Sidbeck and Lowell LaPlante were playing catch.

Sidbeck made a wild pitch and the ball struck the field glasses on the outer side and drove an eye-piece through Pilon's left eyebrow.

He was taken to the office of a local physician and then returned to his home.

Report Of Opportunities

Business opportunities in Manistique, particularly buildings and sites for industrial plants will be made the subject of a survey conducted by the Manistique-Schoolcraft Chamber of Commerce according to announcement by Lars Olson, chamber secretary.

This was decided upon at a recent meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce, the move being made to serve as a follow up of a recent published survey of 37 communities in Upper Michigan.

The preliminary survey, while serving a good purpose, was far from specific, the director agreed. While it could serve to focus public attention on the possibilities of this area it did not go into detail as to what prospective industrialists might expect.

A tentative committee of local residents has been appointed to make the survey. Their names

Cuff notes: Bob Plothenauer, former Esby high football star, has been transformed from a center to tackle in spring practice at Marquette university. . . . Take it from Willie Heston, himself. . . . He made only 92 touchdowns for Michigan, not 93, during 1901-04. . . . The son of Michigan's first all-American halfback was a recent Escanaba visitor. . . . Father Willie will observe his 70th birthday anniversary Sept. 11.

Jim Poppy, Iron Mountain, is a line candidate at the University of Michigan this season. . . . Sgt. Waes softball team, which recently triumphed over the male officer team of the post, 6-5. . . . Rita was discharged from the Waes Aug. 23 and the next day she signed up with the regulars for three years.

Coaches David Ripley and Herman T. Crane of Sault Ste. Marie, whose Blue Devils open the season against the Eskymos here Sept. 1, see the Eskymos and Menominee Maroons as their two toughest assignments of the season. . . . George Ruwitch, Escanaba mentor, is non-committal about the subject.

Marquette, slated to be the home of a Philadelphia Rocket farm hockey team this season, is going ahead with plans for a big season but—no artificial ice as yet. . . . The Palestia still has a concrete floor without ammonia pipes for an artificial ice surface. . . . Two Canadians from the Philadelphia farm system recently were assigned to Marquette.

What with increased haulout and storage charges, the new three-cent per gallon gas tax, state nuisance tax on pleasure boats and inflated prices for used boats, Escanaba yachtsmen do not predict any increases in the local fleet for some time.

Cubs Going Nowhere, But John Schmitz Having Fun Knocking Off Contenders

By Ralph Roden
Associated Press Sports Writer
Johnny Schmitz, brilliant southpaw of the last place Chicago Cubs, is rapidly gaining recognition as a "giant killer."

Although the Cubs are going nowhere, Schmitz is taking delight in knocking off the five teams contending for the National league pennant.

The slender 28-year-old native of Wausau, Wis., has won a total of 11 games from pennant-seeking Boston, Brooklyn, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and New York.

Yesterday he added the first place Braves to his imposing collection, blanking the Southworth crew, 1-0 at Chicago on six hits to post his 15th victory of the year as against ten setbacks.

Schmitz scored the lone run of the game in the ninth inning. He doubled, moved to third on a single and scored on Andy Pafko's grounder when third sacker Bob Elliott failed to convert the bouncer into an inning-ending double-play.

The setback was the Braves' third in a row at the hands of the Cubs and it sliced their margin to two games over the Dodgers and Cardinals.

Brooklyn turned back the Reds, 3-2, in a night game at Cincinnati to take over the runner-up slot from the Red Birds by two percentage points. The Cards' scheduled night game with New York in St. Louis was postponed because of rain.

Despite Pierce's hurling, however, the Tigers were trailing 2 to 0 with seven innings gone as Walt Masterson likewise turned in an excellent pitching job.

But things came Detroit's way in the eighth.

Freddie Hutchinson started it. He batted for Pierce and walked. Pinchhitter Dick Wakeland singled, putting Neil Berry, running for Hutchinson, on second.

Eddie Mayow sacrificed the runners along. George Kell then came through with his third hit of the game, a double to left center that tied the score.

Kell moved to third on Pat Mullin's infield out and romped home with what proved the winning run on Hot Evers' single.

After Bob Feller pitched the Indians to a 8-1 six-hit triumph in the first game, the Yanks came back and took the nightcap, 7-2, behind Allie Reynolds.

Joe Gets Homer 29
Tied at 1-1 going into the seventh, the Indians scored twice to break the deadlock and added five runs in the remaining innings.

Joe DiMaggio started the Yankee fourth inning by clipping losing pitcher Steve Gromek with his 29th homer.

Philadelphia's fourth place Athletics moved back into the pennant picture by taking a two-night doubleheader from the St. Louis Browns, 6-0 and 9-1 at Philadelphia. The A's are only three games off the pace.

Dick Fowler blanked the Browns on three safeties in bagging his 13th victory in the opener. Will McCahan checked St. Louis on seven blows in the finale.

Al Wistert Captains Philadelphia Eagles
Saranac Lake, N.Y. (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football league will be headed this season by Al Wistert, the Eagles 1947 captain.

Wistert, big tackle who came from the University of Michigan, was selected yesterday prior to the team's departure for Indianapolis for today's exhibition game with the Chicago Bears.

25 Battles Are Slated For Today

Championship Finals Set For Tomorrow Night

The Class A teams in the U. P. championship softball tournament swing into action today at Escanaba in a busy program during which 25 games will be played in three classes before the lights are doused tonight at Memorial Park, the Escanaba Softball association's lighted field.

Play begins at 12:15 this noon in Class A, with the Escanaba Paper company meeting the Kingsford Holy Name team at No. 1 diamond.

Two tournament games are scheduled at 1:30 and then competition spreads to five local diamonds for games at 2:45 p. m., 4 p. m. and 5:15 p. m. Nahma, Aug. 28—The first game in the Bay de Noc Baseball league season championship playoff series will be played here tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 2:30, when Nahma, first half champion, pairs off against Cooks, second half titlist. Cooks is the defending titlist, having annexed the title in 1947, the league's first season.

The series is a best two out of three affair, league officials announce. The second game will be played at Cooks one week from tomorrow, and the third game, if one is necessary, will be played on the afternoon of Labor Day at a neutral diamond to be announced later.

Both teams are fully manned and geared for an all-out effort in the championship playoff, which promises to be even more hotly contested than last season.

'Stique Cardinals Play Manistique Red Birds Sunday
Manistique, Aug. 28—The never ending local dispute over the comparative merits of the Manistique Cardinals and the Manistique Red Birds, will be put to another test next Sunday on the local fair grounds diamond.

The Red Birds have a shade the best of it thus far, having recently beat the Cardinals by a score of 4 to 1. The Cardinal supporters, however, insist that this victory was only through a fluke in the ninth inning and the rivalry between the two camps is keen.

The game will be called at 2:30.

Hirn is expected to enter the Highland event.

Opening 18-hole matches will be played next Saturday. Second round tilts are on tap one week from tomorrow, and the semifinals are slated for Monday morning, Labor day. Only the championship finals will be held Labor Day afternoon.

JOHN AUTOPSY TO BE MONDAY

Detroit Clothier Died In Munising Cabin

Detroit, Aug. 28.—An autopsy on the body of Louis R. Cohn, 2, wealthy Detroit clothier, was scheduled today after a brother suggested he might have been a victim of foul play.

Cohn died at a vacation cabin at Munising, Mich., Aug. 17, apparently of a cerebral hemorrhage. The autopsy was set for Monday.

Justice John L. Mokeresky of Dearborn Township signed the interim order on petition of Philip Cohn, brother of Louis.

In his petition, Philip said he had reason to believe that death was due to poison, violence or criminal action.

Cohn was vacationing at Munising with his wife, Julie, 30, at the time of his death.

Alger County prosecutor Richard O'Brien said the death certificate signed by a Munising physician gave cerebral hemorrhage as the cause of his death.

O'Brien said Cohn's body was found beside his bed in a Munising cabin camp. There were cuts on the nose and above the left eye, according to the prosecutor.

Terms of the will disclosed that Cohn left most of his property to his wife.

Los Angeles Dons Edge Rockets, 7-0

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—The first night of action in the All-America Football Conference's third season showed three things. The New York Yankees again will be a title threat, Chicago's improved Rockets may cause some trouble, and Brooklyn's refurbished Dodgers probably won't cause much.

The Yankees trounced the Dodgers, 21-3, in Brooklyn and the Los Angeles Dons edged the Rockets, 7-0, in Chicago last night.

In the circuit's final exhibition at Toledo, Ohio, the Baltimore Colts, strictly tail-enders in 1947, whipped the Champion Cleveland Browns, 21-17.

Rural School District Reorganization Urged

Washington, D. C.—Thousands of "undersized and anemic" school districts in rural sections of the United States are failing to deliver a full measure of modern educational goods for the tax dollars spent on them.

This is the conclusion of the National Commission on School Districts Reorganization which Friday released a report following a two-year study of schools throughout the nation.

Sponsored by the Rural Education Project of the University of Chicago and the Department of Rural Education of the National Education Association, the study was made with a view toward presenting a definite plan of action for improving school districts.

According to the commission, there are now 103,000 local units of school administration in the 48 states. The number of these districts in the different states ranges from 15 in Delaware to more than 10,000 in Illinois.

In the report the commission: (1) Shows the tragic waste due to poor school district organization; (2) describes satisfactory district organization; and (3) outlines essential steps toward improved school districts.

Because school administration is primarily a local concern, there exists today great variety in the type, size and number of districts in each state. Thousands of these districts are operating schools for fewer than 10 pupils—many for five pupils, three pupils, even for one. Such schools are expensive. The cost per student is always high. Even if the taxpayers willingly bear the expense, the commission points out that the tax burden is unfairly distributed, teachers' time and talents only partially used, and the level of education in the state as a whole lowered.

Many school districts, the commission found, operate no school. In some of these there are no pupils and the district is "a screen for tax dodging." In other cases, pupils are sent to school outside the district. Many districts have no high schools and to get high school education boys and girls must go outside of the district to schools over which their parents have no control. In some cases they must pay tuition.

If there were no teacher shortage and good teachers could be employed for all of these little schools, the commission believes they still would be much of a waste—a well-rounded education. Boys and girls, the report asserts, need the experience of working and playing with others of their own age. They need experiences in music, art, and other fields which the small school cannot provide.

In many other districts, schools are so small that they offer only skeleton programs. They cost much more per pupil than larger schools, but they have too few teachers to make possible a well-balanced program. The boy who wants to farm, the girl headed toward office work, and the boy preparing for medicine all have the same program.

"Few of these little schools," states the report, "do a good job even of teaching the three R's. The tragic wastefulness is best told in the number who drop out of school. In most states farm boys and girls get from two to four years less schooling than their city cousins. This is not because they have less ability but because they have poorer opportunities.

In most states the first step in school district reorganization is the enactment of legislation to provide for the appointment of a state commission on school district reorganization. There are advantages in giving this responsibility to a separate commission rather than to an existing board or department, the report states. Such a commission can center its attention on the problem, discharge its responsibility within a limited period, and then go out of existence, leaving the operation of schools to the regular state agencies and the revived school districts.

To guide reorganization, the commission has set up standards. Only those administrative units are satisfactory, according to the commission's recommendations, large enough to provide schools in which: (1) the enrollment in the kindergarten and grades one to six is not fewer than 175 pupils with at least seven full-time teachers, a more desirable minimum being 300 or more pupils with 12 or more teachers; (2) the enrollment in junior and senior high school grades is not fewer than 300 pupils, with a minimum of 12 full-time teachers; (3) elementary pupils are required to travel not more than 45 minutes and high school pupils not more than one hour each way between home and school; and (4) each elementary school serves a neighborhood or small community center and each high school serves a larger community, with every community a school.

The commission says local school administrative units should provide: the services of educational and business administration; supervision of attendance, instruction and transportation; school library service, and community library service if the community has no public library; adult education leadership; physical and health examinations of children; specialists for the identification of typical children; the services of school psychologists, and nurse-teachers; and a research staff.

One section of the report describes reorganization programs already put into effect in Arkansas, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, New York, Washington, and West Virginia.

"In the final analysis," states the report, "the problem which confronts parents, teachers, school administrators, and legislators is that of developing an administrative organization that can provide the well-rounded educational programs needed in rural areas. School district organization should not be regarded as a sacred heritage. Rather, it must be looked upon as an instrument created by society to serve its needs. When a school district becomes obsolete, it must be reorganized to permit it to perform its functions satisfactorily."

However, in 1916 he accepted the nomination and left the court to run against Woodrow Wilson. He was defeated in one of the closest races in history—Wilson winning by an electoral vote of 277 to 254 after being given California's vote.

Charles E. Hughes Dies; 86 Years Old

of one of the Czar's children.

Born in Washington

Krist Oshe, who is now nearing 55, was born in Washington, D. C. "I was born on September 13 ... that's General Pershing's birthday too," Krist will tell you in his smiling, happy way.

His parents were in Washington, D. C. for several years while Matthew Oshe, his father, was secretary to the Russian consul. Their home was in Latvia but in the early 1900's, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania were parts of Russia. Krist's home was in Riga.

In later years Oshe went back to Russia with his parents and attended the Naval Cadets academy. He came out with the rank of lieutenant and for one of the first times in his life, Krist tells us, his father, owner of a vast estate in Latvia, beamed with pride for his only son.

Krist Oshe was torpedoed into the United States.

He left Russia in 1912, to attend cadet school aboard ship. In 1916 he was directly involved in World War I.

The Baltic fleet was blockaded and the Russian Czar and his military leaders ordered commanders of Naval vessels to take their men and head for the battle fronts. Some months later, Krist Oshe and his men were ordered to Vladivostok to re-activate a Russian cruiser sunk in the Russo-Japanese war by the Japanese.

From Vladivostok Lieutenant Oshe, who before World War I inherited many thousands of dollars in lands and holdings from his father, sailed for England. When the men arrived, they learned that the Bolshevik revolution had broken out in Russia. At the consulate Russian officials asked the men if they wanted to return.

U. S. Should Get Tough With Russia, Says Oshe

Oshe asked if it would be possible for him to return to his home in Riga. On learning that the Bolsheviks had entrenched a 75-mile blockade around his home, he decided to visit the British Navy.

He got an appointment aboard a British ship as quartermaster and with one other fellow was assigned to intercept coded messages supplied to Germans by French, English and Italian spies.

For each bit of intelligence matter picked up, the two were paid extra. On one trip, after being out two months, the two each earned over 3000 pounds. That is nearly $15,000 in American money.

Then a German torpedo hit a British ship on which Oshe was serving. Ten minutes later she sunk. Oshe and the other men were taken aboard an American rescue ship, to Philadelphia and so Oshe, who has visited Mexico, Canada, and other foreign countries in his lifetime, came to Philadelphia.

Like many other immigrants, Krist Oshe went to work in the mines. He started in West Virginia and planned to attend the mining university in Virginia, after he had worked awhile in the mines "to take the choppiness out of his English."

Fought for America

Then the United States entered the first World War. What did Krist Oshe do? You bet, he did! Within a few months he was in France with Company M of the 126th infantry, 32nd division. There he attained the rate of sergeant, and served with a sniper troop.

Oshe still has two nieces in Russia. His only sister died in an American concentration camp last fall. Her two daughters are prisoners of the Russians in a concentration camp to this day because they came from an aristocratic Latvian family.

"When the Russians took over in Latvia in World War II, all intellectual and influential persons were shipped out, regardless of their families, who usually stayed behind."

Krist Oshe visited in Latvia in 1924, when his father died. He stayed two years and during that time completed transactions on his father's estate and bequeathed it to his sister.

While there, he made acquaintances with two Russian Bolsheviks and managed to get free passage and transportation into Soviet-controlled Russia.

"Several times, I saw as many as 20 persons living in one small farmhouse. Often the people had only one pair of shoes for the whole group, and it would be necessary for them to await their turns to go outdoors," Krist said in an interview this week.

"I saw, too, the 'community farms.' It is true that the people assigned on these all work together. But whether the crop year is plentiful or barren, each Russian farm must produce a certain portion for the Soviet government. Whether or not there is food left for the workers does not concern the officials."

"The Bolshevik Army is the backbone of Soviet Russia, at home, as well as abroad. It is easy for her to maintain this army and discipline within it, for soldiers, even back privates, command special privileges, special food and authority," Oshe says.

When the Baltimore Colts of the All-America pro Football Conference open their season against New York, there will be only 12 members of last year's squad with the team.

Los Angeles Dons Edge Rockets, 7-0

New York, Aug. 28 (AP)—The first night of action in the All-America Football Conference's third season showed three things. The New York Yankees again will be a title threat, Chicago's improved Rockets may cause some trouble, and Brooklyn's refurbished Dodgers probably won't cause much.

The Yankees trounced the Dodgers, 21-3, in Brooklyn and the Los Angeles Dons edged the Rockets, 7-0, in Chicago last night.

In the circuit's final exhibition at Toledo, Ohio, the Baltimore Colts, strictly tail-enders in 1947, whipped the Champion Cleveland Browns, 21-17.
